SESSIONS: Sessions will focus on the theme of facilitated groups and protocols, Open Space, carousel sharing, a "net" activity, and some "surprises". We are also bringing back David Voss, Communications Specialist.

Principal Center, University folks, and principal practitioners will have opportunities for role-alike conversations, Pair/share across job descriptions, and a "home group" for anchoring. The wide diversity of participants across geographical areas will also provide for rich conversation, opportunities for national networking, and time to cultivate professional friendships to support the work of school principals in their challenging leadership roles.

Premise About Conversation: The single biggest problem with communication is the illusion that it has taken place.

TOPICS AND QUESTIONS TO BE EXPLORED: What are some of the important "must have" conversations you are dealing with? What conversations "count?" What conversations don't "count?" Why do some conversations "stick" and others need to be repeated? What are some challenges to you as the leader in conducting important school conversations? What are Some tips and strategies that can assist and support important conversations to moved school forward effectively?
